Identifying the inner potential of one's self is one of the most challenging task of all. The world has equal amount of opportunities and distractions and blessings and curses. What we choose will determine who we will become. In Mahabharatha Dhuryodhana and Arjuna visited Lord Krishna together but the first option of selecting the army of Lord Krishna or Lord Krishna himself was given to Dhuryodhana and he chose Lord Krishna's army but Arjuna chose Lord Krishna himself and that made all the difference. Arjuna was hesitating to fight the war and fulfil his destiny but Lord Krishna helped him identify his inner potential and helped him raise Arjuna's kaandepam (Bow).

"Life is divided into three terms; that which was, which is, and which will be.

Let us learn from the past, to profit by the present, and from the present, to live better in the future" - William Wordsworth

With the distractions scattered all around the world, with people projecting beauty products and with people obsessed with white skin concept, most students have lost their self-respect, self-confidence and self-control. They are scared to come out in a crowd out of inferiority complex over the projected physical and intellectual expectations.

"Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control;

These three alone lead one to sovereign power"

Alfred Lord Tennyson foresaw the future generation with imminent psychological implications. There are students inside the campus who in their inhibitions expect a teacher to identify them and help them identify their inner potential. There are students who need that supporting hand to lift them up to identify their true self. There are students who really want to turn their lives around. May be, it's time to fight back, may be, it's time to get back. As students, we need to look for help if needed without any delay or hesitation. Lending a helping hand to a struggling student is a moral responsibility of any teacher who otherwise thinks only teaching the subject is his/her job. Let's help them to respect themselves, let's help them to learn on their own and let's help them to learn self-control for greater achievements.

Kandeepam Ezhuga Valedictory Session

I was elated to participate in Kandeepam Ezhuga valedictory session, where perceptions were given a new creativity, attitudes were shaken, individuality was checked and values were given new meaning. Throughout the semester Kandeepam Ezhuga team worked along with our second year students to motivate them on various areas where the students will learn to acquire the right attitude and perception. It's worth looking back at the programme in a nutshell before the valedictory session.

Co-ordination of Body, Mind and Intellect - Marabin Mainthan Mr. Muthayya explained the importance of the synchronization of various senses of the body with mind and intellect. He suggested the students to be flexible enough to see and understand things in a different perspective.

Channelizing energy, time and resources - Mr. Sivakumar Palaniappan spoke on the importance of staying focused by channelizing one's energy, time and resources. There is a world with lots of distractions and in this case where we channelize and spent our energy, time and resources will determine whether we will be successful or not. Reading habits and application of knowledge – Reading makes a complete man. Mr. Sivakumar Palaniappan insisted on the importance of not just reading but the importance of selective reading and continuous reading.

Unleashing the Potential and nourish Core Competency - Mr. Raja Aatmamayan brought out the need for a true self-realisation in terms of physical, mental and spiritual. The speaker insisted the students to understand that they could perform better if they understand what they like the most and what they can do naturally. Understanding one's core competency is almost a huge thing but once it happens then whatever the efforts one takes will bear fruit. Bringing change and being the change – He also brought out the need for change and the benefits of change. He stressed on the importance of such change starting from one's self. He also touched upon the importance of working along and growing along with others while in a job.

Constructive Recreation and Following one's own passion - Ms. Bhuvaneshwari made the students realise, why they should have a hobby and how one could turn a hobby into a business. She also explained why the students should consciously work out their hobby to keep themselves busy and happy. Power of effective Communication Skills and overcoming mind blocks- Everyone in this world has got creativity but the winner is always the one who is able to express it. As engineers, it's communication skills that is the driving force behind innovation and invention. The speaker urged the students to shed their inabilities and break the mind blocks. Competition and Compassion going hand in hand - It's a competitive world and I should be passionate towards my goal and compassionate towards others. The speakers insisted work on their own and with others. This needs a compassionate mind-set towards others without any prejudices. One should know how to create a winning formula by working with others in the competitive world.

Creativity, Innovation and Execution -Ms. Akhila made the students understand the importance of creativity. She told that only creative people will be able to invent and only creative people will achieve success in their respective fields. She also insisted that winners don't do different things but they do things differently.

Valedictory Session – 27-01-2016 – 10.30 am – 01-00 pm

There was excitement among the students when they witnessed Ms. Parveen Sultana on the stage along with Marabin Mainthan Mr. Muthayya and our beloved Secretary. The programme started with a prayer song followed by a briefing of all the sessions so far by different students. Our secretary talked on the importance of such programmes in the campus and the scenario of how such a programme took its shape. Marabin Mainthan Mr. Muthayya introduced the Special guest Ms. Parveen Sultana and briefed on the inaugural session.

Ms. Parveen Sultana

She opened her speech with the struggles she had undergone in reaching where she is today. Her entire speech revolved around few areas such as distractions, Overcoming distractions, being unique and becoming the trend setters.

Distractions – She insisted that the distracting factor could be one's own friends, so choosing friends wisely and saying no to one's own friends at times, is really important. Other distractions could be from the movies and social networking sites and game apps. The time one surrenders to these distractions, he or she is done. Spending too much time on the movies and social networking sites may harm one's physical and mental wellbeing and prevent them from doing something good or productive.

Overcoming Distractions – Engaging oneself in a quality hobby will bring lots of positive energy to one's self. The hobby should not be a time wasting activity but a knowledge enriching and confident building endeavour. At one point of time the hobby should also earn for you.

Being Unique – It needs courage to be unique and the time one decides to be unique, one starts winning. To be unique one needs to understand one's potential and core competency. Becoming aware of one's self and utilising the opportunities available will be the two keys opening the doors of success.

Trend Setting – Being unique is important but setting trends for others is when we become extraordinary. Trend Setters are legends and legends never die. As students, we need to be ready to face the world and the industry. We should raise our quality and attitude above the expected level.

At the end of the session, the students were visibly content with their take aways. Ms. Parveen Sultana shook the perceptions and value systems

6 Meaningful Things To Do If You Are Between 18-23

I always wonder what people of the ages 18-23 do, during the most vibrant, dynamic, healthy, youthful years of their lives. Most of them or all of them, spend their time in going to colleges in the name of acquiring a degree which of course is not really helping them in their lives. It takes a great deal of time, effort and money to be spent in colleges to understand the fact that “Formal education and degree may help in getting a job, but truly does nothing to help you build a meaningful life and career”. By the time you realise this, the very important youthful years of life is totally wasted in doing nothing meaningful other than reading some text books, writing exams and getting a mark sheet at the end of it which anyway is not adding any true meaning and value for life and career.

So, these are the 6 most important and meaningful things that you should do if you are in the age between 18 to 23.

1. Intern in a Business - Read it again, its “intern in a business, not in a company”. Intern in a small or medium business that typically buys and sells goods, provides services to people, door to door selling types, etc. You should be able to see, work and get the feel of end to end business process, not just sit inside one department of a big company and do some proxy work for a lazy employee. When you intern in a business, this is what will happen. You’ll learn how to buy and sell a product or a commodity, you’ll learn how to negotiate while buying and also while selling, you’ll learn how to communicate to anyone effectively, you’ll learn how to make a sales pitch, you’ll learn to fail first and to handle failures, you’ll learn how to manage money, inventory, people and process, you’ll learn life from people of diverse background and you’ll learn business for sure.

2. Travel alone without a plan - When I say, “travel alone without a plan” it might sound bit frightening and potentially risky but that’s what truly gives so much fun and learning. If you are very much used to do things in a systematic way as taught by your teachers and parents, it’s a great way to break that pattern of linear thinking. Travelling without any plan is all about pushing yourself beyond your comfort zone and this is a perfect place to start exploring the world on your own. When you travel alone this is what will happen. You’ll learn the little act of kindness, you’ll learn new levels of confidence, you’ll learn the value of every penny, you’ll learn the importance of people and friendships, you’ll learn to be more respectful than ever, you’ll learn to make lifelong friends, you’ll learn to connect with yourself deeply and you’ll learn that you are lot more resourceful.

3. Contribute to the society - Work and make a meaningful contribution to the society. May be you could work for a charitable organisation, involve in a socially relevant project, take up some community service, raise fund for a charity, and spend some quality time in orphanages and some time in old age homes. When you contribute to the society this is what will happen. You’ll learn personal responsibility and belongingness, you’ll learn to build your self-esteem and confidence, you’ll learn to be kind and considerate to people, you’ll learn to update your knowledge and skills, you’ll learn to expand your network, you’ll learn to build your self-esteem and confidence, you'll learn to be kind and considerate to people, you'll learn to update your knowledge and skills, you'll learn to expand your network, you'll learn to adjust and accommodate if required and you'll learn to make a difference in people's life

4. Read some good books - Read some good books that will truly add value and meaning to your life. I always tell young people that, they should read books about life of great people who achieved great things in their life. The reason why young people should read biographies, autobiographies, memoirs, and diaries is because they provide the most valuable lessons in life. When you read good books (especially about life of great people) this is what will happen. you'll learn to take life lessons from their experiences, you'll learn not to make the same mistakes they made, you'll learn that if it is possible for them, it is also possible for you, you'll learn to stand on the shoulders of great people, you'll learn to see the world in new ways, you'll learn to think from different perspectives and you'll learn to find great mentors and companions in life.

5. Actively get involved in a sport and an art - Start to learn a sport or an art. It is the best possible way to develop your physical fitness and also to learn and express yourself creatively. Sport and physical education is fundamental to the early development of children and youth and the skills learned during play, physical education and sport contribute to the holistic development of young people. When you actively get involved in a sport or an art this is what will happen. You'll learn what rules are, why and how to adhere to them, you'll learn you can lose, you can fail and still feel good about that, you'll learn how important to be honest and fair.

You'll learn to be a team player, you'll learn to respect you and also others, you'll learn to build trust with other people, you'll learn to take up new challenges, you'll learn to think and express creatively, you'll learn to be innovative and different and you'll learn to enhance your physical, social and emotional wellness

6. Start a business - As a young person you could start many businesses today, especially with the advancement in internet technologies. You could even start a business instead of going for a college degree. But that is only if you are confident about yourself and the business you are going to start. Starting a business when you are young gives you great amount of opportunities in your life and career. When you start your business this is what will happen. You'll learn to come up with your own idea, you'll learn to build and execute your idea, you'll learn to brand, market and sell your idea, you'll learn new skills and insights, you'll learn how to communicate and convince people, you'll learn to take risk and accept new challenges, you'll learn to take failures as stepping stones to move forward, you'll learn more about the world, you'll learn to be passionate about your life.

To sum up, never ever waste even a single moment of your young life which is the most precious thing that you could get in your lifetime. Make the best possible use of your youthful years by rightly investing in meaningful things that will truly add value in-terms of your knowledge, skills and abilities. Last but not least, after all the above, if time permits, go to a college to acquire a degree, may be that will help you too sometime in life. So, when are you starting...?

What does the word creativity mean? Creativity is nothing but the thing which you create as others do, but the only secret in it is that how it differs from others' ideas and innovations. To put it simply "winners don't do different things; but they do things differently". In this conflicting world today, people around us forget to notice us, unless we do things different from others. This alone will steal the attention of the society towards us. Creativity plays a mysterious role in the life of successful people. They look at things and reflect their ideas in a unique way, which makes them successful. Creative people are respected and hunted for their talents by multinational corporations. Creativity is given prestigious value in all the business entities. Every creative idea gives us new perspective, renewed energy, immense happiness and help us grow. Only creativity paved the way for the development of our smart phones that we use, flights and aircrafts in which we travel and the internet and broadcasts that we utilize.

We can see few live examples of creative people who achieved great heights in their lives. The unique creations of A.R Rahman made him great in music. Similarly, Steve Jobs in the field of technology, Mark Zuckerberg in the field of social networking sites, Walt Disney in the field of creative entertainment are few others worth mentioning.

If you see a stone when you are walking, you can just neglect it as a waste or you can chisel and sculpt it out into a beautiful statue. The thing which you all need is to improve the art of creativity. Thus enhance your mind to be different from all and expose your talents. Dare to be different, dare to be unique, dare to be creative, dare to be strong and dare to live.

The charisma of the world

Have you ever come across the word “dyslexia”? Dyslexia is also known as Reading Disorder. It is characterized by a disorder involving difficulty in reading. People are affected to varying degrees in different ways. Problems may include difficulties in spelling the words, reading quickly, writing words, pronouncing words wrongly when reading aloud and misunderstanding what one reads. These difficulties are first noticed often at school level.

Let me share my real experience to you. My neighbour’s daughter named Nenthirini was studying in 9th std in a private school. They found out recently that the girl was affected by dyslexia. There was abnormality in her behaviour and after stepping into 9th std, her activities became strange and she couldn't read a single sentence in the board. She was often absent from the classes by bluffing to her mom that she was suffering from headache, stomach pain etc. The school had already started with tenth portions. Her parents started to push her mind towards 10th public examination. She became very much stressed both with the disorder and with the nudging and nagging behavior of her parents and attempted to commit suicide. Her parents then took her to a psychologist and after all her checkup and counselling, the psychologist told her parents that their daughter was affected by this disorder. At that moment the parents realized that she passed upto 8th std by the government’s rule that until 8th std no one should fail.

The consulting psychologist recommended that the only treatment involved in adjusting teaching methods was to meet the person’s needs. Dyslexia is the most common learning disability, affecting 3-7% of the population worldwide. About 15% of school students are affected by this learning disability. The only way to cure this disorder is to identify it in an early stage and give enough care and counselling to the children. It’s also advised to meet a psychologist to learn about the treatments and therapies available. I write this article to create awareness about this invisible disorder among people you know.

I, being a mechanical engineer, was familiar with the word 'tolerance'. But our Media showcased a new word 'intolerance' continuously for a couple of weeks, which I never heard and never thought it existed. Intolerance: Unwillingness to accept others' beliefs or ideas. Along with this word, there came another problem to our country in the name of beef. I personally a huge lover of beef, was shocked when an old man was lynched to death by an angry 'intolerant' mob in Dadri. This was followed by some meaningless statements in social media from some leaders of the ruling party. I was a common Indian, personally felt that my India is intolerant in many aspects. But soon there came the floods. Alas, SINGARA Chennai started sinking. Only buildings were drowned not people's heart. Muslims, a community I love for their unity, opened their mosques for the homeless people irrespective of their religion. Yes, I broke down with happy tears after seeing the pictures. No ...I was wrong, my country is not intolerant.

When I came to this decision, the famous 'Beep song' found its place in flash news. Dear Feminists/ women's rights members, "yes! the song was bad, yes you can protest for it. But where did you go when women were raped during Eelam war Or when the juvenile rogue, one of the convicts in rape and murder of Nirbhaya ( India's daughter) was set free with a fine amount of 10,000 rupees for his animalistic behaviour. The worst case scenario was that, the advocate of that animal is a woman. I feel feminists should be provoked by these situations but not by some songs of a fool. What Simbhu had done was wrong and the wrong is that he used that word in Tamil. If he had used the same word in English, I'm sure that the song would be the ringtone of many youths (still one of our professor made it as his ringtone). Anyway it was a success for the government to distract people from the famous STICKER marketing. If you, the feminists think a song can change the society, poets like Mahakavi Bharathiyar can only do that magic, not some dumb actors and we youngsters are not that dumb to get changed by those songs. So let's don't ponder upon the unwanted things and look over the things which can make our society a better one.

My Most valuable day

This was the place
Where I learnt what life is all about and
This was the day
When I learnt what living is all about
This was the place
Where my smart phone was quite smart
This was the day
When I laughed more than any other days in my life
This was the place
Where I met life changing people
This was the day
When I learnt more in life.
This was the place
Where I met people who took risk like a cup of tea
This was the day
When I learnt what it is to take risk
This was the place
Where the bow of motivation struck me hard
This was the day
When the motivation cannon was unleashed
This was the place
Where I was at peace with myself
This was the day
When I was reborn
This was the place
Where I met myself

This particular meet on 20.12.2015, really made me feel that it is the most valuable day in my life. Speech by psychologist MS. Keerthanya, helped me realize that everything in a person's life depends on the thought he or she has. The story of Menaka card's owner Mr. Rathinavel is an interesting one for all budding entrepreneurs. The tricks and business logics he used to attract the customers not only made us laugh but also forced us to think. The most awaited speech by Mr. Rangaraj Pandey drowned me in his words. So, delightful that I was not able to move my eyes away from him, even now I can hear his last words.

I usually spend my Sundays to take rest as if I have worked very hard on other days and achieved something. But this Sunday (20.12.2015) was the most valuable day in my life. It turned me upside down.

Windows 10

The latest upgrade in technological development is Windows 10 which is of course designed by Microsoft. This is designed for working in PCs, tablets and smart phones. It is preceded by Windows 8.1. It is believed that it could adjust and adopt to the needs of the device allowing Cross Platform Multipliers. The additional information is that Windows 10 is developed with unified store front for apps, ex-box, groove music, web apps etc. A new type of start menu is used where the list of places and other options on the left and application tiles on the right. A new feature Task View is introduced where multiple work spaces can be performed. The user can switch between multiple or spaces. Windows 10 also gives a multifactor authentication technology, based upon the standard developed by FIDO ALLIANCE. The device supports finger print reorganization log in. The major disadvantage is that the Windows updates automatically without allowing the user to update the selective ones. The review states that Win 10 will not meet the expectation of the user. In short this is advanced version of the other Windows versions. Windows 10 was launched on July 2015 and going to be activated on January 2016. The advantages of Windows 10 over Windows 8 is that it contains start menu with more options, Cortana option which is Microsoft's semantic digital assistant which also has more searching options. In addition to that, Windows 10 allows us to view many options in a single window whereas Windows 8 will not. These features make Windows 10 more user friendly. Have a glance, may be you will like it.

LOST IN MUSIC

I'm searching for word to express how I am submerged in MUSIC...I think it would be better if I place an example here. One fine day, I stepped into my shoes for a long walk with the headphones plugged tightly into my ears. I witnessed people who were busy from sun up to sun down but music took me to an amazing adventure and I embarked my journey with music. The lyrics forced me wear a smile on my face unconsciously. My head started nodding, hands started tapping on my phone for every beat and my lips started murmuring the song along with the player in silent mode. Everything showed a sign that I was deeply indulged in it. When melody hit me, it's like being in a static boat in the middle of the sea or enjoying the breeze mixing up with fragrance of daffodils or more than that. When a situation plants struggle into life, music helps me to drive that away. I don't worry about the technical terms like rhythm, pitch, note etc. but it drives me crazy. It offers a kind of resilience that keeps me at bay. When everyone ignores us, music helps us to detach from that loneliness and keeps us calm. Scientists have unveiled that music helps people to have a good sleep, agile on their feet and highlight their strengths. I simply enjoy those mesmerizing tunes and I am at peace with my inner self. Music will make you laugh and music will make you cry. Music will lessen your worries and music will strengthen your character. Music will soften your heart and music will enlighten your thoughts and ideas.

Ever feel lonely, ever feel fear, ever feel sadness.....put on your headphone, listen to any music or song that you like. That's it, the therapy is over.....Feel it, because I'm lost in music and I'm at loss for words!

“THE ROLE OF EDUCATION IS TO CREATE ONE’S IDENTITY AND NOT TO CHANGE ONE’S IDENTITY”.

This quote brought a paradigm shift in my life because I was a boy who won district first in debate competition and appeared in the front page of the Deccan chronicle newspaper in my 8th grade but now it’s completely different I have turned upside down. Being first or last is not a big deal but my platform has changed completely. People started to see me differently because I’m not able to score marks in exams. Since I lack in my academics, people started to say I am good for nothing. They don’t know I’m busy with my projects and preparing myself to invent my own product. All my mini projects that I had done so far has given me a deep knowledge than my classroom lessons. Whenever I ask for a chance it would end up in a big “NO” from the book worms around me. So, what I learnt is never ask for a chance or wait for the opportunity because both doesn’t deserve you. You have to create opportunities in life and live for them and move towards them.

So, I started my own project TED ME v1 which was a huge success. People recognized me and it became my identity. The lesson which I learnt from my past is through my greatest guru in my life. I learnt what life is and just winning is not life itself but only a part of success or happiness.

My past has made me shape my future and I have started earning my education.

One day I was reading newspaper and found an advertisement for army selection. I thought why shouldn't I try it and started preparing for it. I exercised regularly and ate as many eggs I could. I went for the selection but I was rejected in the first round due to underweight but I didn't lose hope. I tried air force and returned back with the same result. I lost my hope and I was shattered. When I saw my struggling even at this stage, as a son I couldn't tolerate. I reduced my exercises and started eating more. Finally with least hope left in my heart I went for navy selection which took place in "WESTRIE School" in Tiruchirappalli. Bad luck was always beside me, when I went there, there were three thousand applicants and I was one among them. All were well built and I decided that this was not going to work. I decided to return home but scenes of my mom struggling flashed before my eyes, so I decided to try this for my mother's sake. The selection process started and I cleared the first round, this helped me gain some confidence because I was thrown out in the first round in the former for underweight issue. I cleared the second round which was rope climbing. After finishing that round I fainted because I didn't eat anything since morning, when I woke up I was in canteen and beside me was a tall fair guy. He said that his name was Amuthan and was there for navy selection. He asked me why I fainted and I explained my family situation and all that happened since morning. I was fortunate that after the second round the officials announced a lunch break. Amuthan was generous enough to buy me lunch and we wished good luck for both of us. That lunch helped me a lot and I cleared the successive rounds. At the end, only six were selected from three thousand and I was one among the six. It was one of the happiest and proudest moment in my life. Amuthan was also selected. I walked home with my appointment order in my hand and tears in my eyes. I felt like I have won the world. I felt proud because no one in my family or village had ever entered this field; I was the first one to do so. I entered my home with pride and told amma that I got a job. My mom was very happy and was in tears and I thanked Gafoor uncle for his timely words. After all "BAD LUCK!" also has to go on a vacation right??
