

FEATURING
WOMEN'S DAY

"The willingness to listen, the patience to understand, the strength to support, the heart to care and just to be there. That is the beauty of a lady"

International women's day celebrations might have flashed this quote in our minds, about the women who we have come across at our home, especially, in the form of a mother, sister, daughter and/or wife. These women, who we have come across in our lives so far, have understood us, supported us, cared for us and they were there when we badly needed someone, just as the quote,

"Every man needs a woman when his life is a mess, because just like the game of chess, the queen protects the king".

We only had maternal society earlier, when human beings were nomadic and women were equally strong, even physically. They brought up the kids and looked after everything. As time passed by, women were made as a show case thing and weak. They were pushed to a corner of the house, the kitchen. Their role was restricted to cooking and bearing children. Education was denied, equal property right was denied and wage inequality was practised against them.

"A woman need money and a room of her own to progress in the society"
– Virginia Woolf.

Women, have slowly started earning their education, their job opportunities, property rights and what not. They work almost in all the areas of the society, even as fighter jet pilots. Women, with their patience, care and accountability are desired by all the employers around the world. Our acquaintance with women in our family must have made us understand their struggles and their wish to come up in society.

"When you educate a man, you educate a man but when you educate a woman, you educate a generation".

Let's facilitate this progress by respecting women for their patience, helping women in their struggles and acknowledging the good works done by them. Let's not stop respecting only the women in our family but everyone in the society to make this place a better place to live and often we leave our appreciation unspoken! On this occasion of international women's day, we all say, Happy Women's Day!!

Women's Day celebrations reminds us about our mother's, sister's, wife's and/or daughter's love and care for us. The love of a women is considered to be divine, that's why most of our Gods are women, that's why we call our nation as motherland, that's why we call our language as mother tongue, that's why we call all the rivers with female names etc. This country has honoured women and treated them like Goddesses, especially mothers. They have been the embodiment of love, patience, care and inspiration. The sleepless nights that she endured during our sickness, the taunting moments that she tolerated when we were naughty, the exhausting moments of household chores that she underwent and the times when she silently supported everyone in the house are extraordinary; How do we brand her, if not as "GOD".

Women have reached new pinnacles and they are present in almost all the fields on par with men. They are everywhere, because their talents are recognised; they are everywhere, because they are capable of multi-tasking; they are everywhere, because they are sincere in their work and they are everywhere, because they are responsible.

To honour and recognise the contribution of women, NIA educational institutions, pollachi celebrated International women's day on 08.03.2016 at NPTC-MCET campus. Tmt. D. Senthil vadivu, co-ordinator welcomed the gathering. Tmt. Kanchana, Lecturer, Electronic and communication Engineering Department presented the Annual report. Tmt. Gowri Manickam presented "YUV-ASAKTHI AWARD" to Rev. Dr. Sis. Annammal loyala, founder and Co-ordinator, Sneha positive faces, Coimbatore, for her social work and to Ms, Aparajitha Balamurukan, International Squash player, for her excellence in sports

PROUD TO BE A WOMAN
INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY 2016

Rev.Dr.Sis. Annammal, in her acceptance speech, listed the importance of self control for a healthy life and urged everyone to inculcate the habit of helping the needy people. Selvi Aparajitha Balamurukan in her speech quoted the importance of physical fitness, healthy life style and physical work out.

Tmt. Kavitha Jawahar, Senior Managing Partner, Reliance Life Insurance, Rajapalayam, was the chief guest of the occasion. She insisted on the importance of women empowerment through Education. She requested all the women to become an inspiration in all walks of life and insisted that the role of women in the society is unavoidable. She expressed her innermost thoughts about the need for the upliftment of women with instant absorbance of courage, hope, determination and perspiration.

YUVASAKTHI FORUM has created an endowment to help the economically backward students who excel in academics. Dr. M.Manickam, Chairman, NIA Educational Institutions, Mr. M. Hari Hara Sudhan, Correspondent, Prof. C. Ramaswamy, Secretary, Directors, Deans, NIA school Administrative Officers, Principals and Head Masters, graced the occasion with their august presence. The function came to a formal closure with the vote of thanks by Selvi U. Dhanusha, Dr. MCET.

There are different forces that try to put down women and treat them as second class citizens, especially, the movies today in our society are horrible. They portray women as a time passing element and an entertaining object. Women need that support much from everyone from home, everyone at work, everyone in the school and everyone in the college. Let's travel along with them and make their life's journey comfortable and meaningful because only women can complement men.

MOM

AN EMBODIMENT OF LOVE

This article will inspire everybody because it is written about the most beautiful creation of god, the women. You will be really amazed by the verity that the innocence of a woman can be changed into a factor of boldness during critical situations. Obviously, the article is about a great woman, who was born in a destitute village and was brought up in a typical village lifestyle by her pat handed parents.

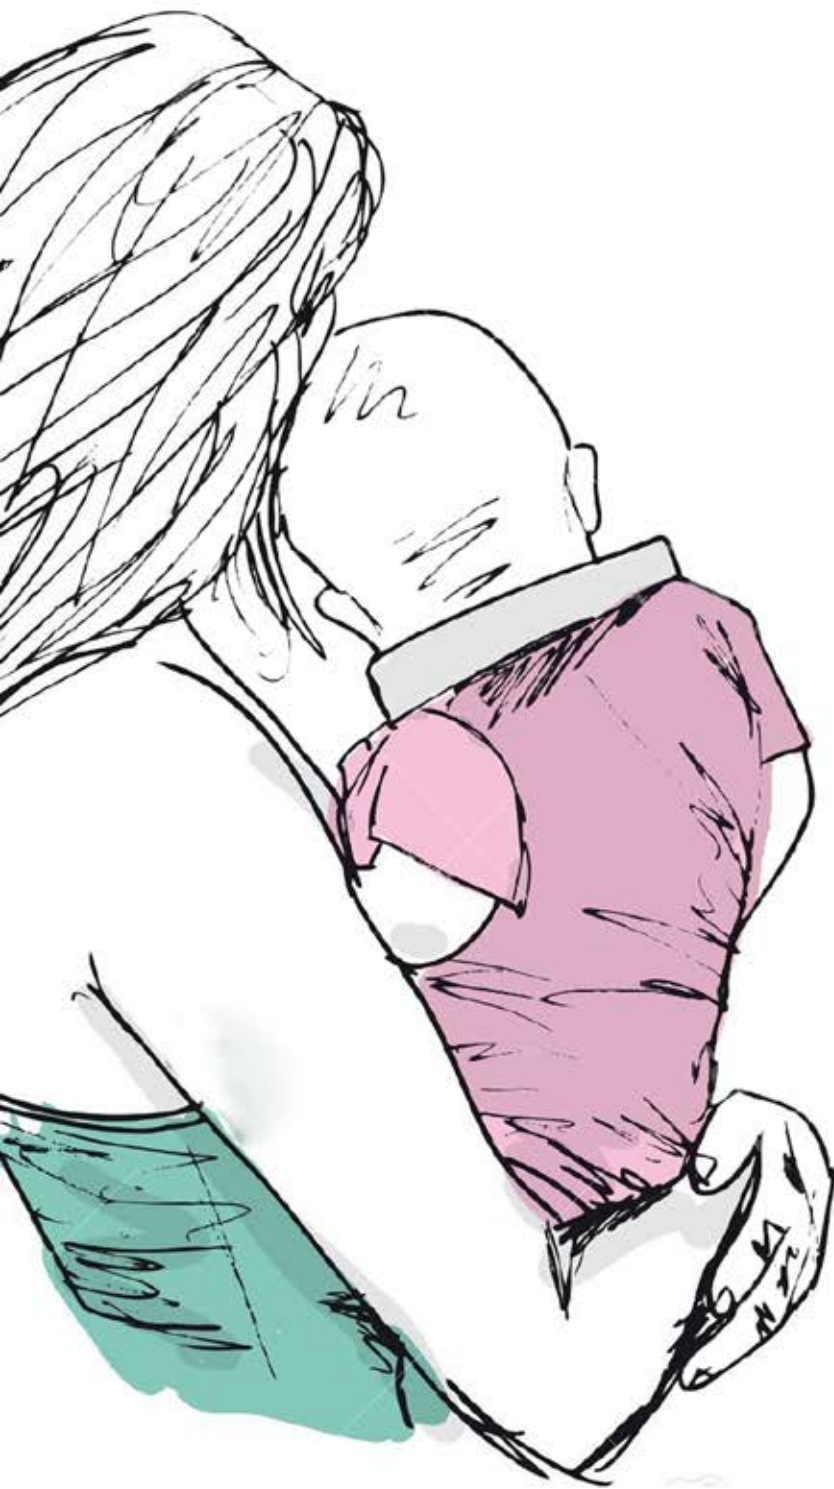

At a very young age, she had to be dropped out of her primary schooling due to her family circumstances. After that, she began to work at the farm fields in her grandma's village. She had always been innocent, childish and adamant to her desire, which made her character more appealing. As days and months passed, as years flew by, time came where she was pushed into the second phase of her life, marriage. She got married to a man who was well-educated and was also a government employee.

She was only at her eighteen when she got married, but her family circumstances compelled her to get married at that budding age. She was indifferent and helpless and her childishness made her matrimonial life a mess, as she was even unable to manage even her own problems.

SANTHIYA.K

In two years, she was blessed with a cutie pie. As people tell, evil follows every good happenings, she was hit by a bolt from the dark. When her child was one year old, her husband met with an accident and was badly injured. His injuries caused his death within three months after the accident. This made her more fragile and weak, prone to danger. She even tried committing suicide but her child's innocent face stopped her from doing it. She realized that she had to live for her daughter and slowly started a new life, with a ray of hope. At the age of 22, she began to face financial problems in her family. Her family members tried to cheat her in order to seize her husband's wealth, but she managed to identify their deceptive behavior and escaped from their crooked plans.

Within few years, she found herself infected by an incurable disease. At the same time, her family was already suffering from financial problems, so she decided to maintain her infirmity as a secret but took medicine for it. Though she was suffering, she brought up her child in the most endurable environment. Her small scale entrepreneurship with initial investment of one lakh made her fulfill her family's need. Years later when her daughter was about to complete her schooling, her health condition worsened and she was informed by the doctors that she would live only for 6 more months. By this time, her daughter came to know about her mother's illness. The women's maternal relatives helped her hand in hand and promised to take care of her child after her death.

But the lady uttered the words of boldness and courage, "My child has grown up and she can take care of herself because I'm the mother of my child", and thanked them for their kindness and concern for her child. Now, the woman's soul rests in peace and the girl still believes that her mother stays by her side all time. Thus the two souls have lived for each other and have made themselves brave and confident which keeps them bonded together even after death. This mother and daughter are only a sample from thousands of such stories in our country, especially our previous generation has seen plenty of such real stories. Let's pay our respect to them.

A WIDOW

SRINIDHI.G
3rd Year ECE

A widow, in our society, is not supposed to glam up her face even if she wanted to. Irrespective of the age, widows are deprived from the use of "vermillion, bangles, mangalasutra" and are supposed to undergo all the customs, like removal of all her accessories during her husband's funeral. From then onwards, she is meant not to enjoy any pleasure. Sometimes, this custom is forced on a widow, with the avowal by people like, "everything to her was her husband, now he's no more and she has no pleasures and happiness except for to live with his memories". With this mentality, people want women to be in grievance for the rest of her life. Neither her parents nor her relatives or the surroundings understand her feelings. They stick to certain rules, which have to be followed by a widow for the sake of people around her and her right to live independently is taken away from her forever. It's like picking freshly bloomed flowers along with the plant's roots. All her feelings, happiness, desires were all pulled off from her. Everybody around her make her feel that the entire world has become dark and it is the end of her life. They create an environment more equivalent to 'Sati'. I am not sure who has framed all these rules and regulation but I am sure that it is inhumane to punish women in the name of tradition. In our country, although people don't follow traffic rules, they never fail to follow these old customs and regulations. Traffic rules were framed only to make our life safer and it is essential to follow it, but these customs will only make women feel that she has lost everything in her life. Only the care of people around her can cure her pain and not all these meaningless customs. In our society even in twentieth century, a widower is allowed to remarry and a widow should stay calm inside her home (regardless of the law of the Hindu Widow's remarriage act which was enacted on 26 July 1856). It's strange that we all hear more about the word widow than widower. By wearing western costumes and using updated gadgets doesn't mean that we are modern people, the real modernization will begin only when people's thought process change. Majority of people hesitate to talk about widow remarriage and about these reckless customs. Now women are superior in all the fields, "let us be human" to understand a women's feeling and stay by her to console her for her loss. She might be your sister, daughter or your mother, so just understand her feelings before practicing these meaningless customs.

My aspiration to become a civil servant is not an overnight thought but, "A Strong desire in my blood", right from my childhood. I would really feel proud and contented if I have an opportunity to contribute and serve our nation, as the citizen and servant of India. From my point of view I would say, that no Civil Service is equal to defence service in our nation. In defence service like army, Air force or Navy, the main objective is to protect people from unknown foreign iniquity forces. But as a civil servant like IPS or other similar services, one would get a chance to protect the people, develop the quality of economic & social standards and an uncorrupted environment.

While coming on to the preparation phase for civil service exams, it isn't a piece of cake or easy task to accomplish your target in a short period of time. But with hard work and effective preparation you could possibly attain it in a short period of time. I have come across sayings like, "civil service is equal to completing two or three UG courses". Hence the UPSC's civil service exam is one of the toughest competitive exams in the world and one has to strive hard to clear this. One has to take clear notes while reading, because it is a long process of learning and it might be difficult to remember all those we have learned. I have involved myself in the preparation for Civil Services from my second year of BE course. I know that I am bit slow but I think I am steady in my preparation. We have to be aware, that whatever we learn for prelims would be of most useful for general studies part in Main Exam, so understand the concepts in depth and then analyze it clearly, for it shall stay in your memory for a longer run.

Next area to be covered is current affairs. Current affairs plays an important role in prelims and in interview too. So practice the habit of reading authentic Newspapers, Magazines to stay updated. Concentrate more on National news, Economic news, Science & Technology, Parliamentary & State legislative affairs. During your college days keep on learning NCERT Books for subjects like History, Geography, Science, Politics, and Economics which are all a kind of prerequisites. So try to complete it within your college era. The soft copy of NCERT books is available at <http://epathshala.nic.in/e-pathshala-4/flipbook/>.

MY ASPIRATION TO BECOME A CIVIL SERVANT IS NOT AN OVERNIGHT THOUGHT BUT,
"A STRONG DESIRE IN MY
CHILDHOOD.

CRAVING TO BE A CIVIL SERVANT

Civil service Exam is being conducted by the Central Government and all other State Governments of India. It's a single exam for 24 Postings like IAS, IPS, IFS, IRS, etc.. And it has got three phases,

1. Prelims ( Objective Type )
2. Mains Exam ( Descriptive Type )
3. Personal interview.

After getting through all the exams, you can select a posting based on the rank criteria, which you scored through your main exam and Personal Interview. If you are in the top of the table, you can select your favorite service and home Cadre but with low score you won't be able to choose a post as per your wish.

Have a conversation with people who have already appeared for the exam, and get to know the struggles and hindrances they have faced. Go through the previous year question papers and know about the question pattern which will keep on changing every now and then. The Preliminary Exam will be the deciding factor to enter into the main exam and personal interview. All you have to do is to work hard, set your target and strive towards it. In our Campus there is a Study Circle at C-Block, 429A for UPSC exam preparation. Make use of the ample resources available around you.

"YOU NEVER FAIL
UNTIL YOU STOP TRYING"

- ALBERT EINSTEIN

One question has been following me for the past 7 months, almost all the people who knew me asked this question, "Why do you live alone?", I couldn't reply a better answer than this one, "why shouldn't I?" After enjoying a whole year of hostel life, I made a decision to live as a local pollachian for a while. Yes, Pollachi is almost like my home town Nagercoil and the people are kind and warm. Who wouldn't like that? So we, eight friends vacated the hostel, found a new home, enjoyed, played, laughed, clashed and shared everything for the next one year. Like most of the people I was never satisfied with my decisions and this time I wanted to live all alone, like a stranger in this paradise. I found a 10*11 room in Pollachi which is more than enough for my whole body to curl up. Here is what I have done in the last 7 months by living alone,

Read 19 books, Wrote few blogs, Clicked more than 5000 photos (excluding my selfies), Tasted biryani from nearly 15 hotels in Pollachi alone.( Hotel Ashok is the best for your money), Made some friends without considering any age difference of 40 and above, Cleared 3 arrear papers in Mathematics in a single night's study, Toured 50% of Pollachi in bike, and finally became a frequent user of quora.

It may not sound a big deal, but to me, it's almost like an entirely a new personality in disguise, which you would expect from your favourite actor. Once you find how to enjoy your own company, in my experience I can assure you that won't feel bored. Being alone is completely different from feeling alone. You may not break a mountain or write a novel (a national best seller blah..blah..blah ). At least you can spend your own time for yourself. Solitude is never an unimaginable state but a state, where you could discover yourself, your likes, wants, needs and many more about you. It's the only time you can be yourself. Isn't it blissful to listen to the rhythm of your own heart and love yourself? You can take decisions for your life by being yourself without anybody's opinion in it, isn't that the real freedom? With the increase in freedom, increases the creativity of an individual. There is a misconception that solitude is same as loneliness. When a person enjoys and understands the state of solitude he/she will never ever feel lonely. Besides these, being with yourself will make you realize your own powers.

Disclaimer: Once you have started enjoying your own company, it is proved that loneliness becomes too addictive and will improve your soul.

INFORMATION vs KNOWLEDGE

Many of us have the confusion to distinguish between information and knowledge, so let me first differentiate them clearly. Information is something you receive from someone but knowledge is a skill acquired by experience or it is the awareness or understanding of someone or something such as facts. Let me explain it to you through examples.

Information is to know that there are 20 recognised religions in this mighty world and 6 recognised religions in our country, but Knowledge is to know that we are all human beings belonging to one religion known as HUMANITY. According to Human Rights Watch Public Reports, on acts of religious deaths in India, during 2005-2009 period, an average of 130 people died every year from communal violence or about 0.01 deaths per 100,000 population which is a huge number.

Information is to know that your mobile phone or your tablet has an 8.0 megapixel front camera with an LED flash, which can capture amazing selfies, but knowledge is to know that there are certain places or circumstances in which a selfie could become catastrophic. In 2015, Indians, taking selfies died posing in front of an oncoming train, in a boat that tipped over at a picnic, on a cliff that gave way and crumbled into a 60 foot ravine and on the slippery edge of a scenic river canal. According to TIMES OF INDIA the most number of selfie deaths in the world occurred in India taking the count to 16 deaths in 2015.

"AN AVERAGE TEENAGER SPENDS 4 HOURS A DAY ON SOCIAL NETWORKING MEDIA BUT STILL COMPLAINS THAT THERE IS NO TIME TO DO HIS CLASSWORKS "

Information is to know that splitting an atom by using high speed neutrons produces enormous energy through nuclear fission reaction, but knowledge is knowing that this enormous energy can be used to produce electricity and satisfy the human needs rather than just knowing that the same energy could also be used to create nuclear war heads to produce mass destruction. According to INTERNATIONAL CAMPAIGN TO ABOLISH NUCLEAR WEAPONS (ICAN), nine countries in this world possess a total of 15,695 nuclear weapons. The United States and Russia account for 93% of them. These nuclear weapons are sufficient enough to end the human race and turn the Earth into a ball of ashes.

Information is to know that social media apps like Facebook can be used to connect with your known friends and also find new unknown friends who are miles away from you and also knowing that as of now there are 1.3 billion Facebook users around the globe, but knowledge and value is about knowing something about the person sitting next to you (at least his name). In today's life style, man has become a slave to social media. According to Common Sense Media, on an average a teenager spends 4 hours a day on social media and spends atleast an hour on Facebook.

What I have presented here is the information for you from my knowledge.

INPLANT TRAINING AT HCL

I and six of my friends underwent an inplant training (IPT) at HCL (Hindustan Computers Limited), Coimbatore. It was a three day training, comprising of two sessions per day. Since this was my first experience of this kind, I was in a twitter-pated state not knowing what was awaiting for us in the near future. Firstly, we were explained what inplant training meant and how it would help the students in their placements or in their higher studies, and later we were trained on usage of latest technologies and programming languages. Those three days were the best; I learnt many new things, got many new and inspiring friends. Altogether, the training was a blend of knowledge, fun, and inspiration.

DAY ONE:

In the first session of the training, the chairperson of the Coimbatore HCL career development, Mr. Shriram gave an introduction about inplant training and a brief history of HCL and its founder Mr. Shiv Nadar. The important note he mentioned was that HCL has stopped working on hardware entities and has moved to software development. We were then trained on basic networking skills and hardware trouble shooting by Mr. Ramachandran, trainer from CISCO network at HCL. This session mainly focused on MAC, IP address, four layers of network engineering and the role of a system admin in a network.

During the second session, we were trained on JAVA programming language, and how JAVA plays a major role not only in IT industries but also in other fields. This session really made me wonder about the applications of this omnipotent programming language. JAVA is everywhere and in everything, it is omnipresent.

DAY TWO:

We were trained on basic computer hardware and structure of layers of hardware, during the third session. Though this session iterated the facts that we already knew regarding hardware, we weren't bored, as it was more interactive than the other sessions we have attended before in the same topic.

In the fourth session, we were briefed on Microsoft, Linux operating systems and Linux server host. We were shown a video about the construction and working of the servers and their types and how data is stored and retrieved from the data centres. The video was inclusive on the operation of Facebook data centre and Ctrl S (Asia's largest data centre).

DAY THREE:

Session five incorporated training in embedded systems and Assembly level programming on embedded systems. We were shown a video on how processors are manufactured and how programs are coded in the printed circuit boards using software. Introduction to Robert Bosch's CAN technology (technology developed by Bosch group of industries to improve Global Positioning System in automobiles) was awesome.

In the last session, we were trained on .net (DOT NET) and its applications. Only after this session we became aware of the fact that more than 90 programming languages go hand-in-hand in order to develop various software for web and other applications.

At the end of this inplant training, I questioned myself, about my utilization of my time effectively, because we were not able to answer many questions thrown towards us. I request you my friends, to choose two domains in the area of your interest and develop your skills extensively in it. Choose a domain keeping your passion in your mind, so that your passion will drive you to attain your goal.

“Dream is not what you get in sleep, it is something that doesn't let you sleep”

- Dr.A.P.J.Abdul kalam

Everyone dream of something but most of us dream just in our sleep. Without dreams, we won't be able take our life to the next level. It is our dreams which lead to actions and keep us on our toes. All of us merely dream of becoming someone extra-ordinarily special but the hitch is that we don't have the valor to pursue it.

If everyone has the courage to chase their own dreams, everyone would have definitely been out of the ordinary and triumphant. Only few, very few among us have the ability to stand out among others. It is not that most people don't have the courage and ability, but it is the trepidation of failure. Those fears take a huge form of a creature within us and pull us back by raising questions like, “you are just a common person and how come you can achieve those things?”, and suggest us to be simple like others. But one must understand that fear is just a “FALSE EVIDENCE APPEARING REAL”. Build yourself with the courage to face failures, because who knows those failures might be the stepping stone for your success.

Failure may be painful but if you don't have the mental strength to face it, you might get stuck up with it. If you want to step out of the pain you are about to face, then there is no use of dreaming. Dreaming and acting upon it would take you to the destination where you want to be and who you are meant to be. Act on it and work for it because every failed attempt will teach you what not to do, learn from it. If you don't fail today you are going to fail somewhere, so fall hard and pick yourself up and keep moving on and that is how we can achieve success.

Nothing is impossible for people with courage to face failures. If you have a dream, work on it, make smarter plans and work hard. Be the one you wanted to be, nothing is happier than achieving what you wanted to be. Don't lose hope on yourself and may be its time for you to get up and run towards your dream. If you are tired of trying then slow down, walk your way towards your dream but never stop. Don't be afraid of losing, so dream big, work hard...

BE THE ODD, START DREAMING AND SUCCESS WILL FIND YOU!

“FEAR IS JUST A FALSE EVIDENCE APPEARING REAL”

Our life is something special and kind, it gives us everything without any expectations from us. Life is neither a bed of roses nor a smooth road, it is full of ups and downs but still it has many facets of blessing and successes. Life is very vibrant and colorful and it comprises of various colors like happiness, joy, pleasure, wonder, care, surprises, etc. But at times, we are so careless that we don't realize it. Imagine a blank canvas and painted canvas are set up for an auction. The painted canvas is very colorful with love a bright red, joy a nice orange, peace a deep purple, patience a grass green, kindness a dark green and self-control a beautiful blue while the blank canvas symbolizes emptiness and nothingness. It is pretty sure that all of us would be ardent to own the colorful canvas and not the blank one. Similarly, when we fill our canvas (life) with colors, we become the role models and examples for others to follow. Don't let the emptiness of the world influence your life, instead replace the emptiness with enthralling colors.

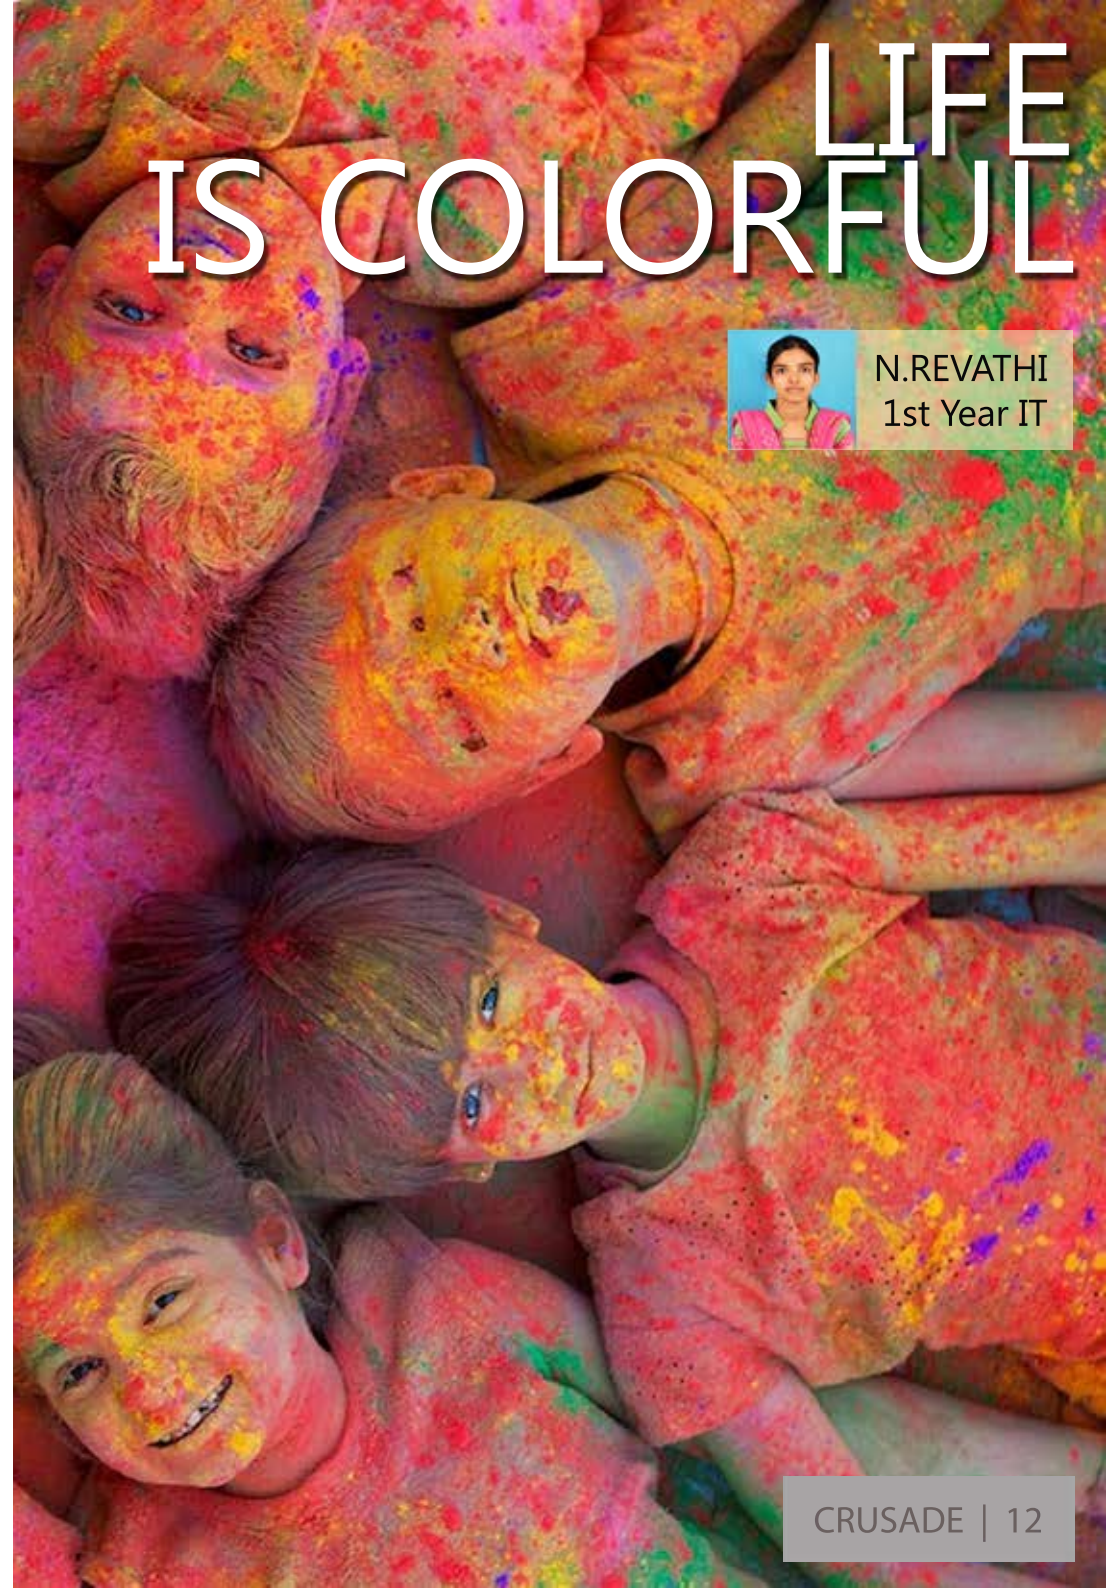

Meanwhile, try to color other people's life too; it could also make our life more appealing and colorful. Just wake up from the slumber of darkness and start filling your life with the colors of your choice. Sometimes, we have to see people as crayons. They may not be our favorite color but we need them to complete the picture of our life. We have to just accept it and most importantly, we should not be an eraser, but must be a unique crayon which makes their picture inclusive. As CHARLIE CHAPLIN quoted, "I have many problems in my life but my lips don't know them, they always smile," life is meant to be colorful, so never stop creating, exploring, innovating, and spreading your own colors.

Days passed and I gained more and more confidence that I too can succeed in life. Everything changed, the boy who was wearing a patched shirt once, is able to afford a "LEE-COOPER" now. The society respected me and blood rushed into my veins when I saw something that affected the society. "YES I am a jawan", I got my first posting in "INS UDAYAGIRI". Loaded with 300 members, we set sail into the massive ocean, the ship roared towards Singapore for a goodwill visit. At nineteen years of age, I didn't expect myself to land up in this place. Our boys roamed every streets of Singapore and I got a Philips radio which I always wanted to have in my room. Singapore was followed by Mombasa, sessile and various other places whose name were so new to me. Our ship completed its six months voyage in sea and I was on my way to pudukottai for my holidays. I sat in the train and my memories flew back to those tedious days when I had to wake up early and do all the household chores but now everything has changed, I am running my family; all my brothers and sister were studying in my earnings . My mother walked with pride and all my uncles who refused even to touch me once, came and hugged me. After two days, I started smelling the rusty smell of Pudukottai. Ravi was waiting for me in the junction. We went home and I was so hungry and so my mom made me some good food. I ate it and gave my mom seven hundred rupees, which was a big money in those days. I gave Mahendran a watch which I bought in Singapore and ravi, a "Ray-Bon Aviator" glass. I bought some clothes for Mala, a silk saree for mom and a blazer for my father about which he was so much crazy from his college days. I gave everyone everything and finally placed the radio on the desk and turned it on. The songs which I heard were not just songs; they were my dreams. When you have that search for small happiness from childhood, you will be in tears when you achieve them.
