(2-4-12 model)

“Industry Attachment Programme (IAP)” has been evolved to make the Automobile Engineering student’s role ready at the time of their graduation. Generally, students undergo an internship programme during their final semester, which it is felt will not be adequate to imbibe industry expectations to make a meaningful impact on the student. Keeping this in mind, a programme called “Industry Attachment Programme”, has been established where students will undergo internship from their second year onwards.

The programme envisages a select batch of students to undergo one week training during winter vacation of II, III and IV years in selected industry and an internship for 2 weeks, 4 weeks and 12 weeks during their summer vacation of II, III and IV year respectively, with the same industry. This arrangement facilitates the students to understand the nitty-gritty of the industry operations thoroughly as well as the industry to have a critical appraisal of the student for possible employment.

Besides the students, a faculty member is also deputed along with the students to learn the industry practices and upgrade their skills to develop into effective teachers.
