LIFE LESSON - CHESS

I do know how to play chess from my 4th grade with nil trainers & practices. When I have been to coaching for 3 years, I had a view on the pieces which I like the most to play. Chess board seems to be a war game where we have to plan in righteous way to save the king. Devise effectual strategies while playing will be an amazing experience.

Chess seems to be a game which does not depends on luck or muscular strength but on the intelligence over the strength. It taught how to think analytically and be more successful.

In real life, we have to make a move or to step forward to win. If we take a situation where we can predict one's move before they act . It has a major advantage which chess teaches exactly.

The idea of a game is so easy to learn but so difficult to master it. A game of near infinite positions and complexities which made me to explore more and get into chess with a lot of interest.
