We want to position the CE industry as the most sought-after sector

The recently held Academia Forum for Atma Nirbhar CE and Components Sector is aimed to stimulate growth and conversations around young engineers seeking to contribute to the country's development through sustainable innovation.

"We have a vision which clearly says that the industry is going to triple as the backbone of the industry is going to be 'people. It is important we make this the most sought-after sector for the coming generation," said Mr. Vivekanand Vanmeeganathan, Chairman, Academia Task Force, EXCON.

"The research and development of equipment (for alternative fuel) at reasonable cost and packaging for convenience was the challenge given to students. The reference, research and impact were the broad parameters," added Mr. Vanmeeganathan.

The forum was all about ensuring there remains an inquisitiveness among engineering students. Students representing Sathyabama Institute, Dr. Mahalingam College and SRM Institute presented papers that highlighted well researched solutions for various industries.

Join us for a session on "Women in Construction- Barriers, solutions and way forward" on 20th of May, at Gulmohar Hall, EXCON between 1430-1600 Hrs, followed by High Tea.
